

Australian Rollforming manufactures a range of Carrier Slats that are widely used in sugar mills and pulp and paper mills, both in Australia and overseas.

Australian Rollforming Carrier Slats are typically manufactured from 6mm and 8mm commercial grade mild steel, utilizing our unique, continuous rollforming process.

This unique technology ensures that Australian Rollforming Carrier Slats are precision made to exacting tolerances, particularly in terms of the radii of the leading and trailing edges and the pitch of the chain.

Typical Two Pitch Assembly

It is a result of this rollforming process that enables Australian Rollforming Carrier Slats to outperform the traditional brake pressed products.

With consistency of profile assured, an appropriate gap between the leading and trailing edge is designed into the slats, and this allows each slat to slide on each other, this preventing costly and time consuming machine jams.

Overlapping Edge

Another benefit of the consistency of profile is that it enables the Australian Rollforming Carrier Slats to “nest” neatly on each other, therefore making them conducive to be transported long distances.

Rollformed Slats ready for Despatch

By being able to contain transport costs to a minimum, Australian Rollforming Carrier Slats can be economically shipped to all parts of the world.
